QUESTION

Your task is to conduct a case study analysis comparing the implementation of the Waterfall and Agile models in two different software development projects. Choose one project that followed the Waterfall model and another project that adopted the Agile model. Research each project thoroughly and create a comparative report that addresses the following aspects:

1. Project Background and Requirements Analysis: Provide an overview of each project, including its objectives, scope, stakeholders, and initial requirements analysis process. The requirements analysis process involved gathering input from key stakeholders through interviews, surveys, and workshops. A detailed requirements document should be created, outlining functional and non-functional requirements, priorities, and constraints.
2. Development Approach and Project Management: Describe how each project implemented either the Waterfall or Agile model, including the phases, practices, and methodologies used. Additionally, discuss the project management strategies employed in each project, including roles, responsibilities, and communication channels.
3. Challenges Faced: Identify and analyze the challenges encountered during each project's development lifecycle, considering factors such as scope changes, communication issues, and stakeholder expectations.
4. Success Factors: Discuss the key factors that contributed to the success of each project, including project management practices, team collaboration, and adaptability to change.
